Whether you have a small business that needs a few documents signed each month or a large firm that processes data for hundreds of clients, pdfFiller is your gateway to saving time and money by optimizing workflows. Drawing on case studies of five pdfFiller customers, it's easy to see how hundreds of hours are saved on administrative work by managing all of a company's document workflows for less than the cost of a single overnight delivery.

A company can cut hundreds of hours a year using pdfFiller to manage their document processes. Fillable forms enable doctor's offices, accountants, and real estate agents to get complete, legible, and secure information from clients. Data from fillable forms can be exported to Excel or a CRM and used to fill out other forms.

Beyond saving hundreds of dollars on courier fees and thousands of dollars processing paperwork, the benefits of using pdfFiller extend to security, organization, and clarity. Secure cloud storage keeps documents from getting lost and meets industry-leading compliance requirements for medical records and accounting documentation. There's no need to ever lose a document, waste time deciphering handwriting, or wait for documents to be delivered again.

Time is money: save hundreds of hours a year

Our customers consistently cite the time they save as one of the key benefits of using pdfFiller as well as one of the hardest to quantify as a direct dollar figure. Using a combination of data provided in customer case studies and some hypothetical numbers, it's possible to say that a small office that gets the most out of pdfFiller can save over $23,000 a year — that's 130 times the cost of an annual premium subscription.

pdfFiller automates the routine challenges that any office faces: collecting information from clients, storing it, and using that information to fill out other forms. This can take the form of patient intake forms at a doctor's office, an accountant collecting financial information, or an insurance agent handling a claim.

Let's see how our customers benefit from using pdfFiller's features for professional document management.
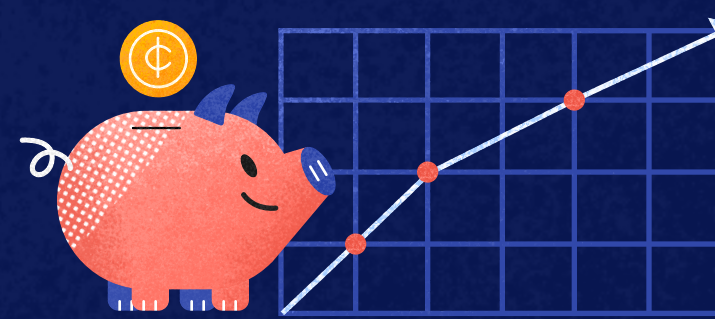

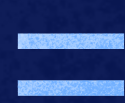

Debbie Cunningham, owner of a Texas insurance and real estate agency, estimates that pdfFiller saves her firm "probably ten hours per person per week, so that's 30 hours per week." Taking a conservative $15 an hour, multiplied by 52 weeks, it's possible to conclude that a similar small business could reallocate that yearly $23,400 away from paperwork and mundane tasks into something that delivers greater value: seeing more patients, providing better customer service, or even increasing sales.

$$$15 \text{ per hour} \times 52 \text{ weeks} = $23,400$$

Other customers report similar boosts to their workflows:

> "It's so much more work without pdfFiller — probably 30-40 hours a month more work if we had to do all the scanning and printing the old way."

> Millennium Chiropractic

Calculating the cost of lost opportunity while running on a paper-based workflow instead of seeing more patients or clients is obviously difficult. Nonetheless, Michael Combs, a hearing specialist, has calculated that it generates thousands of dollars by saving time for patients that were previously spent on paperwork.

> "It's hard for me to quantify my time as money, but as a hearing aid provider, it can be expensive, and I see a lot of people, so it can be up in the thousands. If I'm not seeing one patient because I'm doing administration things, it could cost me a couple thousand. The more I can see patients, especially if I'm seeing a new patient, that could be thousands of dollars that's in my business. And if I have to do paperwork and am doing it by hand, that prevents me from seeing new patients."

pdfFiller simplifies data collection across multiple industries. Accountants, medical professionals, real estate agents, and insurance brokers all take advantage of the ability to save time by using pdfFiller to collect the information they need to do their jobs as efficiently as possible.

> "Using pdfFiller has saved us 110 hours per year at $35.00 per hour as best we can tell. That was just the beginning of the savings because that time was put to productive, front end, revenue-producing use so the swing was at least triple what we saved in addition."

Speed up workflows with e-signatures

pdfFiller allows users to significantly save on courier costs — assuming each document sent for signing would need to be shipped using USPS Priority Mail Express.

Having to overnight a document for signing just once a month is already more expensive than a monthly pdfFiller subscription.

> "Sometimes we have situations where there is a hospital that needs someone right away and we have patients that can't be seen because we couldn't get the documentation back because we had to Fedex it to them and [the doctors] had to Fedex it back to us. The fact that they can sign on their phone and get it back to us the same day is huge for our business and for the number of patients that we serve."

Get professional and accurate documents

It's easy to assign a dollar value on hours saved by digitizing paperwork and collecting e-signatures instead of using expensive couriers. On the other hand, while always having well-organized documents that meet current legal and medical industry standards is passive and intangible, operating with this benefit is critical for any organization or business.

> "I have neat enrollment forms that are easy for the employees to read."
> Angela Grover
> CHG Healthcare

pdfFiller protects a business from the most common mistakes that carry the highest costs such as poor handwriting. It's simply more professional to always be able to produce high-quality PDFs in minutes without a scanner or complicated software.

Besides clean and professional documents, printing can be eliminated by almost 100%. Depending on how much a company prints this can also lead to dramatic savings. For instance, Green Brick Title was able to "reduce printing costs by 2/3rds" after going paperless with pdfFiller.

Paper consumption is not a trivial cost. In fact, research conducted by AIIM suggests that the average cost of a paper form is $4.56. If courier fees are added to this number, the amount can easily double or triple. This makes pdfFiller's paperless forms not only the neater and more environmentally friendly option but also the business-savvy way to go.
